PRESS RELEASE

Central Arts and Devious Theatre
(Ireland)
Pulled
by Niamh Moroney

There is no such thing as the walk of shame! An uncompromising new comedy about female sexuality and the social media generation from one of the most exciting and authentic new voices in Irish theatre

Meet Amanda and Michelle as they retrace their drink-fuelled steps from the night before through a trail of Twitter, Facebook and selfies, and tackle such existential questions as How did I get here? Did I pull? Hungover, emotional and gloriously unapologetic, these two man-eating young wans strut their stuff in front of their imagined social media audience, in a performance that pushes buttons and boundaries... until Michelle finds herself maybe-possibly-probably in need of the morning after pill, and they're reminded that there's a price to be paid.

Pulled marks a major new collaboration between the two South East based companies, Central Arts of Waterford, and Devious Theatre, of Kilkenny. Developed as part of Niamh Moroney's residency at Central Arts throughout 2016, Pulled is the sequel to Niamh's solo show Yer Wan, which toured widely to sell out venues in Ireland in 2015 and won Best Solo Show at Galway Fringe Festival. Yer Wan illustrated Amanda's going out routine after a long week of work. Pulled lets us see what happened next! What madness can a regular Friday night bring? A lot! That's what.

Niamh Moroney has been making theatre in Ireland for 11 years, having turned to writing in the past five years, this is Niamh's fourth self penned production. Niamh is a founding member of South East Irish company Devious Theatre, who are nationally renowned for their In-Yer-Face style of original work by young writers. Now in their 11th year, Devious are celebrating Pulled as their first show to reach outside of Ireland.

Pulled stars Niamh Moroney herself, and Andrea Bolger, a Dublin based actor with guts and gusto. Andrea plays Michelle, the 'messy friend'. Directed by Ita Morrissey, Kilkenny based Australian punky theatre maker, and teched by the brazen Heather Troy Whelan. This all-female team is in for the win, and wants to entertain you!
